LOUISVILLE.

TUESDAY, MARCH 8, 1853.

FIRST PAGE.—On our first page will be found the description of our First, Second, Remained, as of an Army Surgeon, Captain of the Cavalry, Culverine of Gata, A Rat behind the Arms, etc.

Mr. Seward declared on one of the last days of the late session of Congress that we are now on the brink of such disasters from the prevalence of the railroad mania in the United States, as would bring upon us Great Britain some years ago, when Mr. Webster, as the greatest promoter of such madness, He thinks that the fluctuations of the stock market, the immense prices obtained for real estate, and the heavy importations and revenues indicate the near approach of a collapse. Much depends upon the influences which guide Gen. Pierce. It is stated that he has held long interviews with Hon. Robert J. Walker, and more recently with General Scott, and that he has modified his system of free exchanges. Whatever modification of the tariff law may seem desirable to the President will be carried.

The present is perhaps a favorable time as Locofoecism can reasonably expect ever to have for carrying out its peculiar views in relation to free trade. If the leaders of the party really think, as they have all along pretended to think, that large standing armies are dangerous and unnecessary, they must be regarded as an axiom in our country, and we don't think that it stood all in need of the confirmation of Gen. Pierces military experience. The people of the United States did not elect him so much on account of his military experience. On Tuesday evening the Senate voted to the most ready modification of the principles upon which their government has been administered by the Tuilleries and the Court of St. James.

Gen. Pierces says in his inaugural that our military experience confirms the opinion that our country would be not only dangerous but unnecessary. The fact that large standing armies are dangerous and unnecessary has always been regarded as an axiom in our country, and we don't think that it stood all in need of the confirmation of Gen. Pierces military experience.

It is the last day of the session, and our country would be not only dangerous but unnecessary. The fact that large standing armies are dangerous and unnecessary has always been regarded as an axiom in our country, and we don't think that it stood all in need of the confirmation of Gen. Pierces military experience.

The people of the United States did not elect him so much on account of his military experience. On Tuesday evening the Senate voted to the most ready modification of the principles upon which their government has been administered by the Tuilleries and the Court of St. James.

A Select Committee of the Wisconsin Legislature have recommended the removal from office of Judge Levi Hubbard for high crimes and misdemeanors. The charges against him involve a most extraordinary amount of money, turpitude, including bribery and debauchery.

The Supreme Court of Ohio has decided in favor of the constitutionality of the law of 1850, taxing the banks of that State.

The case will probably be appealed to the Supreme Court of the United States.

Mr. Tyler's letter to the Duchess of Saxe-Coburg, the London Times, speaks of us as "scruffy," "shabby" and "wind-swept." Also, "indiscriminate," and "ridiculously perturbed."

MUSICAL.—Madame Almon and Max Maretzki, and troupe are making arrangements to give a series of operas at Nibbles, New York.

DOLY, who has been entangled in New York on a charge of perjury in the Forrest case, has been acquitted.

The following tribute to the lovely dead is one of the most beautiful that we have seen:

ASSAY OFFICE.—The practical effect of the establishment of an Assay Office in New York will be to reduce the coinage at the Mint in Philadelphia. There is already a sufficient sum in coined money in possession of the banks and individuals to meet all our purposes. This sum has been used heretofore for the payment of government, averaging 25 to 40 cents per dollar for gold coins and $1 to $5 for silver coins, according to the sizes of pieces.

Gold bars or ingots, duly stamped by the assayor at a small cost, of the value of $100, $300, and $1,000, would be equally available as small coin in payment between banking institutions and the Custom House. The law of the Assay Office provides that when the gold or silver shall be cast or formed into bars or ingots, or disks, no pieces as above shall be cast or formed of a less weight than five ounces, unless they be of standard fineness and the charge of casting or forming, or refining said bars, ingots, or disks shall not exceed the expense of executing the operation to be regulated from time to time by the Secretary of the Treasury.

The practical operation of the new law will be to substitute bars or ingots for coins. The coin held by the banks and by the Sub-Treasury. The aggregate gold coinage of the United States since the establishment of the Mint has been about $160,000,000, more than one-third of which must have gone abroad, to be recouped again in England, France, and other countries.

New York city banks have in their vaults about $100 millions in gold. Nineteen-tenths of this might as well be, for all practical purposes, held in gold ingots or bars, and the coin distributed in exchange therefore.

The fact that large standing armies are dangerous and unnecessary has always been regarded as an axiom in our country, and we don't think that it stood all in need of the confirmation of Gen.
